Below: Knotted hedge-parsley Torilis nodosa – an unusual umbellifer with trailing stems and characteristically prickly fruits. First spotted in July 2014 by David Green who found a few plants in the Old Light compound, it was photographed by Andrew Cleave in September when the plants were in fruit. Some other records have now come to light which indicate that it may have been present in the Old Cemetery in 2009, although it was not found there in 2014.
